E-Learning

With E-Learning, you use your computer, linked to the internet, to access training materials. The sessions are designed to lead you through the materials of the modules. You can access this type of learning whenever you want and work at your own speed. There is a small charge for accessing each e-learning module but this is considered a reasonable expense to charge to your unit or council. The fee can either be paid by credit card or you can obtain a pre-paid pin number from your Area.

For more information please contact your District Commissioner, Area Training Adviser or visit our E-Learning “how to” page.

Telephone Training

Join other Guiders for a training without leaving your home or office. No need for baby sitters or car!

Join in a training session using your own phone. The cost of the phone call is covered in the registration fee which is a legitimate expense to charge to you Unit or Council. The fee covers the phone line, so if you want to gather several people around one phone you still only pay once! You will need to list everyone's name and iMIS number on the application though, so that they can get credit for the session!

Handouts will be emailed or mailed prior to the event. If you do not have access to email please request mailed copies on your registration form. The sessions last about 90 minutes and joining instructions are sent out once your registration is received.

PLEASE NOTE: All Areas in AB, NWT & YK have agreed to cover the cost of Safe Guide Telephone Training for their members.

Please take a look at the Provincial Training Calendar to view upcoming telephone and face-to-face trainings taking place in your area. Follow each event's registration process.

Face to Face Training

Guider trainings are usually very practical and fun! Not only will you find an experienced Guide Guider trainer leading the session but participants are also encouraged to share ideas and experiences. Many Areas and Districts run trainings locally in the evenings and on weekends. Face to face trainings are organized by Districts, Areas and the Province. They take place in a variety of venues including homes, community centers, schools and camp sites.

Some sessions are free but for others, such as those using a lot of materials or lasting overnight, will have a cost associated with them. Many units and Council's will cover all or part of this fee. Talk to your District Commissioner for more details.

If your Council or community is interested in holding a training locally talk to your Area Training Adviser, she will be able to help with ideas and finding appropriate trainers.

Most provincially organized trainings for adults are residential events, held on weekends. Details of how to apply and the sessions being offered are advertised in ANY_Guide News, Blueprint and posted on the Alberta Council Training page as the date gets closer.

Other Options

Think outside the box! – If the training you want is not available why not organize your own event with others in your District or Area. If your local trainers can't help we can always call on one of the 75+ trainers in the Province! Distance a problem? Perhaps we could link your group with a trainer through a web cam, x-box or something similar. Want to explore this option? Talk to your local Area Training Adviser or email training@albertagirlguides.com.
