First guide comes on and says "Oh no! I've lost it!". She then starts to search around on the floor. Second guide comes in and asks what she is looking for. First guide replies that she has lost her little green ball. Both guides continue searching the floor. Several more guides come on and are told about the lost little green ball. Even members of the audience can be persuaded to join in the search. After enough time has been dragged out, the first guide, sticks a finger up her nose and says, "Don't worry, I can make another one!"
