

Service/PR Project: Bookmark with Volunteer Recruitment information

Each year, Northern Lights Area & its Districts are assigned holidays or special occasions to make tray favors for our local hospital. It is placed on food trays with the hopes of brightening a patient's day. Here is a template for a bookmark I made for Valentine's Day this year on behalf of Area Council. Of course, I couldn't pass up the opportunity to do some PR work and placed some volunteer information on the back!

Some basic computer skills are all you need to make these. Here is the easiest way to make it: On a computer Word-processing program make a table with 2 cells approximately 1.5" x 5". Print them on any type of paper. Cut out around the solid line and fold along the dotted line. Another way to make them is to do the graphics & verse on one side of paper. On the reverse side print the PR information. This can be a little tricky with some printers. This method will take a little trial and error to perfect.

To save on paper, add extra cells to fit as many as you can on a sheet of paper. I laminated mine. If you don't have a laminator, use wide clear packing tape and apply to both sides. With a little imagination, it can be adapted for any occasion. Just insert different clip art or poems, or have the girls do some art work of their own. The possibilities are endless. Give them to female co-workers, friends or family. Even place them in your local library.
